Tracy "Too Dread" Moore hosts the Sunday night Reggae Shack on KTHX FM in Reno, NV. He also plays keyboards with local reggae band Jahzilla and has been active in the live reggae scene as a musician and promoter since the late '80s. He believes reggae is an important catalyst returning all humans to the mentality of dignity and mutual respect, and is livicated to perpetuating that reality. Link up with him at myspace.com/jahzillaandtoodread.

a foreign journalist portraying Cuba in a negative light. (Governments and people do sometimes have their differing points of view!) I am just a non-political person whose intention was to make an educational film and spread the word: Rastafari is alive and well in Cuba.

Since conception, Ras Cuba has been screened in film festivals in JA, CA, FL, NY and D.C. I believe the future for Cuban Rastafarians is bright. When the travel ban to Cuba is lifted – hopefully sooner rather than later – and Cuba opens web access to its citizens, Rasta from all parts of the world will have open communication with one another – Jah Guide! ☺

Susanne Moss is a self-taught photographer and videographer acclaimed for her documentary-style visuals of cultures the world over. This New Yorker's photos appear in the Discovering Rastafari! exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute's National Museum of Natural History. Moss has exhibited in two one-woman shows in Cuba and various group shows in New York. selahphoto@aol.com
